Benefits of Cryptocurrency

Decentralization

Cryptocurrencies are not controlled by any government or bank. This means no central authority can freeze your funds or block your transactions.

Fast and Global Transactions

Send money anywhere in the world within minutes — without the delays or high fees of traditional banks.

Lower Transaction Fees

Crypto transfers often cost much less than bank wire transfers or online payment systems, especially for international payments.

Decentralization and Blockchain

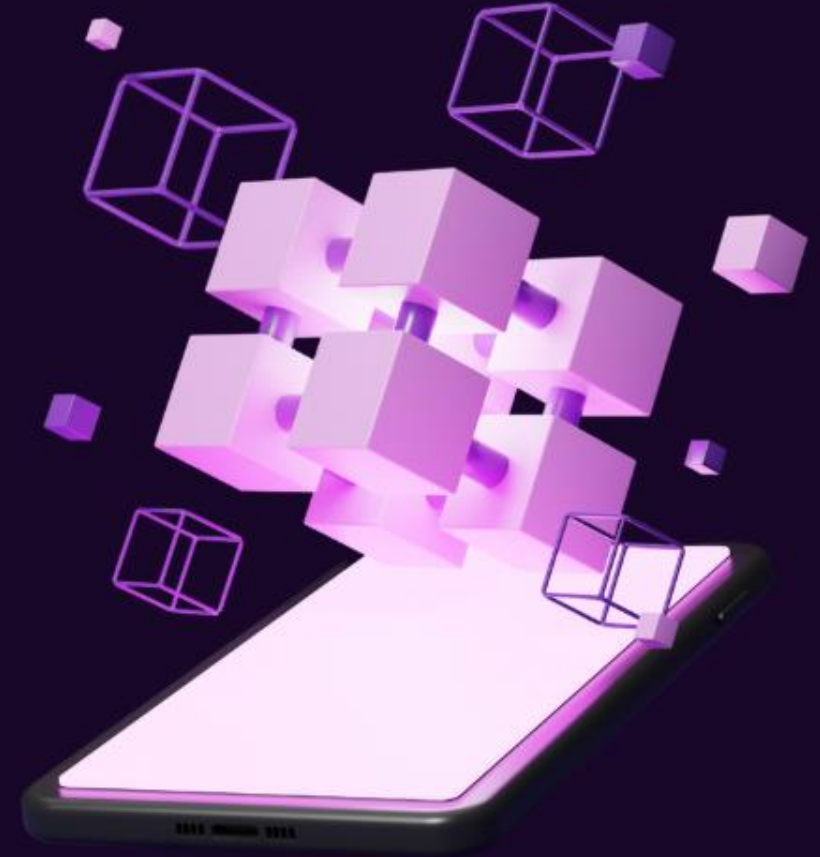

What is Blockchain?

A blockchain is a digital, public ledger that records all cryptocurrency transactions in a secure, transparent, and unchangeable way.

Each block contains a list of transactions, and blocks are linked together in a chain — hence the name block-chain.

Key Features of Blockchain:

-  Secure: Uses cryptography to protect data
-  Transparent: Anyone can view the transaction history
-  Immutable: Once recorded, data cannot be changed
-  Smart Contracts: Code that automatically executes agreements
